Introduction

Dear Fellow New Yorker,

I would like to take the opportunity to provide you with important information about funding opportunities for Education-providing organizations. New York is an educationally-diverse state, possessing some of the most and least dense school districts in the nation. These unique settings each require innovative administration and support. Our government, on both the state and federal level, provides funding for competitive grants, which finance various programs in support of quality education in New York State.

As I travel across New York and meet with different individuals, one thing is clear – many find that information about funding dispersed by the government for education agencies is difficult to decipher and access. As your Senator, I am working hard to provide you with as much information as possible to put your organization and agency in a position to compete for these funds. My office is committed to assisting you in accessing these funds.

This guide will provide you with important deadlines, contact information, and a brief overview of many grant programs. More detailed information for these programs can be found by visiting the internet links provided or contacting the rewarding agencies. In the following pages, I have provided contact phone numbers and emails for just this reason. This guide is by no means comprehensive and is meant to serve as a starting point for familiarization with the number and nature of the programs that exist.

My Senate website (www.Gillibrand.senate.gov) is continually updated with critical information about various funding opportunities that are available to you, how to access them, and where to apply. You can also request hard copies of this guidebook, and other thematic funding guidebooks, by filling out the guidebook order form at the end of this guidebook and mailing it back to my New York City office or by emailing an electronic copy to grants@gillibrand.senate.gov. Furthermore, if you need assistance from a federal agency or with an immigration case, please refer to the casework form at the end of the GOAL or visit http://gillibrand.senate.gov/services/casework/form/. As you move forward with any grant opportunities, please contact Andrew Usyk, my Grants Director, for letters of support, when applicable. You can reach him in my Washington, D.C. Office at Grants@Gillibrand.Senate.gov, or (202)-224-4451

Sincerely,

Kirsten & Gillibrand

Kirsten E. Gillibrand United States Senator

Section III: Disadvantaged Persons

1) Improving Basic Programs Operated By Local Education Agencies (Title I, Part A)

This program provides financial assistance to LEAs and schools with high numbers or high percentages of poor children to help ensure that all children meet challenging state academic standards. Federal funds are currently allocated through four statutory formulas that are based primarily on census poverty estimates and the cost of education in each state, as measured by each state's expenditures per elementary and secondary student.

Additional Information:

- Once a state's EFIG allocation is determined, funds are allocated (using a weighted count formula that is similar to Targeted Grants) to LEAs in which the number of poor children is at least 10 and at least 5 percent of the LEA's school-age population. LEAs target the Title I funds they receive to schools with the highest percentages of children from low income families.
- Unless a participating school is operating a school wide program, the school must focus Title I services on children who are failing, or most at risk of failing, to meet state academic standards. Schools in which poor children make up at least 40 percent of enrollment are eligible to use Title I funds for school wide programs that serve all children in the school. LEAs also must use Title I funds to provide academic enrichment services to eligible children.

Eligibility:

- State Education Agencies (SEAs)
- The U.S. Department of Education allocates all but 1 percent of appropriated funds to local education agencies (LEAs) through participating state education agencies (SEAs). The 1 percent is set aside for the secretary of the interior and the outlying areas (American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Guam, and the U.S. Virgin Islands). The secretary of the interior makes sub-grants to schools operated or funded by the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Indian Education, while the outlying areas receive formula grants.

In addition, the U.S. Department of Education must award one grant to a project located in a women's prison; awarding this grant is a onetime, not an annual, requirement. Up to 3 percent is reserved for national evaluation and technical assistance.

1) State Energy Program

➤ The State Energy Program (SEP) provides grants to states and directs funding to state energy offices from technology programs in DOE's Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy. States use grants to address their energy priorities and program funding to adopt emerging renewable energy and energy efficiency technologies.

Additional Information:

- > States often combine many sources of funding for their projects, including DOE and private industry. The State Energy Program plays a role when:
 - The state energy office is involved in the project,

Additional Information:

- ➤ The Program, authorized in Title V, Subtitle E of the Energy Independence and Security Act (EISA) and signed into law on December 19, 2007, is modeled after the Community Development Block Grant program administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).
- ➤ It is intended to assist U.S. cities, counties, states, territories, and Indian tribes to develop, promote, implement, and manage energy efficiency and conservation projects and programs designed to reduce fossil fuel emissions and the total energy use of the eligible entities. This is planned to improve energy efficiency in the transportation, building, and other appropriate sectors.

Eligibility:

- Frants can be used for energy efficiency and conservation programs and projects community wide, as well as renewable energy installations on government buildings. Activities eligible for use of funds include:
 - Development of an energy efficiency and conservation strategy;
 - Building energy audits and retrofits, including weatherization;
 - Transportation programs to conserve energy;
 - Building code development, implementation, and inspections;
 - Installation of distributed energy technologies including combined heat and power and district heating and cooling systems;

➤ The loan guarantee program has been authorized to offer more than $10 billion in loan guarantees for energy efficiency, renewable energy and advanced transmission and distribution projects.

Additional Information:

- ➤ Title XVII of the federal EPA Act 2005 authorized the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) to issue loan guarantees for projects that "avoid, reduce or sequester air pollutants or anthropogenic emissions of greenhouse gases; and employ new or significantly improved technologies as compared to commercial technologies in service in the United States at the time the guarantee is issued."
- ➤ The loan guarantee program has been authorized to offer more than $10 billion in loan guarantees for energy efficiency, renewable energy and advanced transmission and distribution projects.

Eligibility:

- Eligible parties can be of many different types; considerations go more to the type of project than the organization involved.
- DOE will provide funding for Stand-alone projects that include the use of energy efficient models in school construction. Mostly, however, this program is aimed at brand new and extremely cutting-edge programs that function more as a test bed than anything else. Successful parties must consider the uniqueness of their project an important part.

Section XI: Helpful Tips and Online Guides

1) Eliminating PCBs in schools: Protecting Students from Hidden Dangers

- The EPA recommends removing PCB containing ballasts as part of a complete lighting retrofit. A complete lighting retrofit includes removing old fluorescent tubes as well as ballasts, and replacing the entire lighting fixture with newer, more energy-efficient fixtures. Replacing the older ballasts with newer lighting technology improves lighting quality, distributing the light more uniformly and thus providing a more comfortable and productive learning environment. The newer lighting technology also increases energy efficiency which means cost savings for the school in the long term.
- The EPA's Energy Star program supports schools, businesses and organizations planning to install energy-efficient lighting technologies.
- These manuals are available on the Internet at http://www.epa.gov/region09/toxic/pcb/pdfs/pcbadmin.pdf

2) The New Guide to Operating and Maintaining EnergySmart Schools

- The new Guide to Operating and Maintaining EnergySmart Schools is a primary resource for implementing a district or school-wide operations and maintenance (O&M) program that focuses on energy efficiency. The objective of this guide is to provide organizational and technical information for integrating energy and high-performance facility management into existing O&M practices. Written for school district management, facility managers, business officials, and administrators, the Guide helps users identify energy savings, develop an energy management plan, and address technical considerations.

 FAS details actual expenditures of federal grants funds to state and local governments.
 Figures are presented to the state level by program area and agency.
- Consolidated Federal Funds Report, Census Bureau (http://www.census.gov/govs/www/cffr.html)

Section XIII: Useful Websites

1) Tax Incentives Assistance Project (TIAP)

The Tax Incentives Assistance Project is a website that is sponsored by a number of government agencies, nonprofit groups, and other organizations. It is very informative with regards to federal tax incentives. Information is organized into categories for consumers, businesses, and builders/manufacturers. The site includes updates about enacted federal legislation and provides links to Internal Revenue Service (IRS) tax forms.

The Tax Incentives Assistance Project (TIAP), sponsored by a coalition of public interest nonprofit groups, government agencies, and other organizations in the energy efficiency field, is designed to give consumers and businesses information they need to make use of the federal income tax incentives for energy efficient products and technologies passed by Congress as part of the EPAct 2005 and subsequently amended several times.

Incentives covered include grants, tax credits, loans, rebates, regulatory exemptions, fuel discounts, and technical assistance. Information on state incentives is made available through a national map and through summary tables organized by type of incentive, regulation, technology/fuel, and user. The information about state incentives is updated after each state legislature's session ends. Information about federal incentives is updated after pertinent legislation is enacted into law. Another link provides access to "Laws and Incentives Enactment History."
- The Alternative Fuels and Advanced Vehicles Data Center (AFDC, formerly known as the Alternative Fuels Data Center) provides a wide range of information and resources to enable the use of alternative fuels (as defined by the Energy Policy Act of 1992), in addition to other petroleum reduction options such as advanced vehicles, fuel blends, idle reduction, and fuel economy. This site is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy's Clean Cities initiative.
